

Job 21:14

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Therefore they say unto God, Depart from us; for we desire not the knowledge of thy ways.

Analysis

Job quotes the wicked: 'Therefore they say unto God, Depart from us; for we desire not the knowledge of thy ways.' This reveals the mystery: those who reject God often prosper. Job isn't endorsing this attitude but acknowledging the reality that challenges simplistic retribution theology.

Historical Context

Ancient wisdom assumed godliness brought blessing and wickedness brought curse. Job's observation of wicked prosperity challenges this comfortable equation.
