

Job 24:7

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

They cause the naked to lodge without clothing, that they have no covering in the cold.

Analysis

They cause the naked to lodge without clothing (עָרוֹם יָלִינוּ מִבְּלִי לְבוּשׁ, aróm yalínu mibbeli levúsh)—The word aróm (עָרוֹם) means naked or poorly clothed, emphasizing extreme poverty. The verb lun (לִין) means to lodge or spend the night—these people lack even basic shelter and clothing for nighttime cold. This directly violates Exodus 22:26-27, which commands creditors to return a poor person's cloak by sunset because 'wherein shall he sleep?' God threatens to hear the cry of those denied this basic provision.

That they have no covering in the cold (וְאֵין לָהֶם כְּסוּת בַּקֶּרֶךְ, ve'ein lahéem kesút baqará)—The kesút (כְּסוּת) is a covering or garment, specifically the outer cloak used as a blanket. The qara (קָרָה, cold) refers to winter's chill or harvest season's cold nights. Job paints a specific, devastating picture: people shivering through cold nights without protection. James echoes this concern: 'If a brother or sister be naked, and destitute of daily food, and one of you say unto them, Depart in peace, be ye warmed and filled; notwithstanding ye give them not those things which are needful to the body; what doth it profit?' (James 2:15-16).

Historical Context

In the ancient Near East, a single outer garment often served as both daytime clothing and nighttime blanket for the poor. Temperatures in the Levant and Mesopotamia could drop dramatically at night, especially in hill country. Denying someone this basic covering endangered their life. Mosaic law's requirement to return pledged cloaks by sunset shows God's concern for physical survival needs. Job's description suggests systematic violation of these protections.
