

Job 29:18

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Then I said, I shall die in my nest, and I shall multiply my days as the sand.

Analysis

---

Job recalls his former confidence: "Then I said, I shall die in my nest, and I shall multiply my days as the sand." The metaphor of dying "in my nest" (qinni, <sup>אֶרְצִי</sup>) evokes security, comfort, domestic peace. The comparison to multiplying days "as the sand" uses the common biblical image of innumerable abundance. Job's past expectation was not unreasonable—covenant theology promised blessing for obedience (Deuteronomy 28). Yet Job's experience shattered this confidence, forcing him to grapple with suffering that contradicted his theological expectations. From a Reformed perspective, this illustrates the danger of presumption—assuming we can predict God's dealings based on formulas. While God's promises are sure, His providence remains mysterious. Job's journey from presumption to faith mirrors the believer's growth: from confidence in predictable blessing to trust in sovereign goodness regardless of circumstances. This prepares for New Testament teaching that following Christ may mean suffering, not prosperity (2 Timothy 3:12).

Historical Context

---

Ancient Near Eastern wisdom emphasized longevity as divine blessing (Proverbs 3:16, Psalm 91:16). Dying "in one's nest" surrounded by family was the ideal death. Job's expectation aligned with cultural and covenantal norms. His shock at suffering's arrival reflects how deeply blessing-theology was embedded in Israelite thought—making Job's ultimate faith triumph even more remarkable when those expectations were demolished.

Related Passages

---

1 John 4:8 — God is love

John 15:13 — Greatest form of love

Study Questions

---

1. How can confidence in God's promises coexist with openness to unexpected suffering?
2. What is the difference between biblical hope and presumption about how God will act?
3. How does Job's shattered expectations prepare us for Jesus' redefinition of blessing in the Beatitudes?

Interlinear Text

---

וְאָמַר	עַם	קִנִּי י	אֶגָּן ע	וְכַח זֶרַח	אֶרְבֶּה ה	יָמַיִם:
Then I said	H5973	in my nest	I shall die	as the sand	and I shall multiply	my days
H559		H7064	H1478	H2344	H7235	H3117

Additional Cross-References

---

Psalms 91:16 (Parallel theme): With long life will I satisfy him, and shew him my salvation.

Job 5:26 (Parallel theme): Thou shalt come to thy grave in a full age, like as a shock of corn cometh in in his season.

Jeremiah 49:16 (Parallel theme): Thy terribleness hath deceived thee, and the pride of thine heart, O thou that dwellest in the clefts of the rock, that holdest the height of the hill: though thou shouldest make thy nest as high as the eagle, I will bring thee down from thence, saith the LORD.

Genesis 32:12 (Parallel theme): And thou saidst, I will surely do thee good, and make thy seed as the sand of the sea, which cannot be numbered for multitude.

Obadiah 1:4 (Parallel theme): Though thou exalt thyself as the eagle, and though thou set thy nest among the stars, thence will I bring thee down, saith the LORD.

---

From KJV Study • kjevstudy.org