

Job 39:26

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Doth the hawk fly by thy wisdom, and stretch her wings toward the south?

Analysis

God asks Job: 'Doth the hawk fly by thy wisdom, and stretch her wings toward the south?' This attributes bird migration to divine instinct rather than human teaching. Natural behaviors that seem instinctive are actually divinely programmed.

Historical Context

Ancient Near Eastern observers marveled at bird migration but couldn't explain it. God's question reveals that 'natural' instinct is supernatural design.

Related Passages

John 15:13 — Greatest form of love

1 Corinthians 13:4 — Characteristics of love

Romans 2:1 — Judging others

Revelation 20:12 — Judgment according to deeds

Study Questions

1. What 'instincts' in your life are actually divine promptings?

2. How does recognizing God's programming in nature affect your trust in His guidance?

Interlinear Text

הָ, מְבִינָה תְּבָרָה	יֹאבֵד	יָ יָ	יִפְרֹשׁ	כְּנָפֶיהָ	לְתִימָן:
by thy wisdom	fly	Doth the hawk	and stretch	her wings	toward the south
H998	H82	H5322	H6566	H3671	H8486

From KJV Study • kjevstudy.org