

Job 5:24

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And thou shalt know that thy tabernacle shall be in peace; and thou shalt visit thy habitation, and shalt not sin.

Analysis

Eliphaz promises: 'And thou shalt know that thy tabernacle shall be in peace; and thou shalt visit thy habitation, and shalt not sin.' The 'tabernacle' (tent/dwelling) represents home and family security. 'Not sin' could mean 'not miss' or 'not come to harm.' Eliphaz promises domestic tranquility and the security of finding everything intact when Job returns home. This is cruel given that Job's children are dead and his household destroyed—Eliphaz offers restoration contingent on admitting guilt for tragedies Job didn't cause.

Historical Context

The safety of one's dwelling and the security of finding everything intact upon return were highly valued in ancient Near Eastern culture, especially for semi-nomadic peoples. Eliphaz's promise would be particularly painful given Job's losses.
