

Joel 1:11

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Be ye ashamed, O ye husbandmen; howl, O ye vinedressers, for the wheat and for the barley; because the harvest of the field is perished.

Analysis

"Be ye ashamed, O ye husbandmen; howl, O ye vinedressers" commands farmers to lament. The Hebrew bosh (ashamed) indicates confusion, disappointment, and recognition of failure. Farmers who worked diligently now face total crop failure—not due to laziness but divine judgment. "For the wheat and for the barley; because the harvest of the field is perished" lists staple grains destroyed. Wheat and barley provided bread—the staff of life. Their loss meant famine. This teaches that human labor, however diligent, cannot succeed apart from God's blessing (Psalm 127:1-2). The Reformed doctrine of providence affirms God's active governance over all events, including weather, harvests, and economic outcomes. Success isn't automatic reward for effort—it's gift from God who causes growth (1 Corinthians 3:7).

Historical Context

Ancient agriculture depended entirely on rainfall, soil fertility, and absence of pests—all beyond human control. A locust plague could devastate years of labor in hours. The covenant explicitly linked agricultural prosperity to obedience (Leviticus 26:3-5, Deuteronomy 28:1-14) and failure to disobedience (Deuteronomy 28:15-24). This wasn't mechanical cause-effect but covenantal relationship—God blesses faithfulness, withdraws blessing from rebellion.
