

John 1:13

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Which were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God.

Analysis

This verse explains the origin of spiritual birth, using three negatives: 'not of blood' (biological inheritance), 'nor of the will of the flesh' (human effort), 'nor of the will of man' (another person's decision). Divine birth originates solely 'of God' (ek theou). The Greek 'haima' (bloods, plural) may reference both parents—no human lineage produces spiritual children. Salvation is monergistic—entirely God's work. Regeneration precedes and enables faith, not vice versa. This demolishes all human pride in salvation.

Historical Context

This verse directly challenged Jewish confidence in Abrahamic descent. Being born Jewish didn't guarantee God's family membership. Nicodemus, a teacher of Israel, would struggle with this concept (John 3). The early church confronted similar issues regarding circumcision and Torah observance. This verse establishes that entrance into God's family requires supernatural birth, not natural descent or religious ritual.

Study Questions

1. How does divine birth 'of God' challenge notions of earning salvation through religious heritage or effort?
2. What does this teach about the relationship between human decision and divine regeneration in salvation?
