

John 1:26

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

John answered them, saying, I baptize with water: but there standeth one among you, whom ye know not;

Analysis

John reveals a mysterious presence: 'there standeth one among you, whom ye know not.' This is the first hint of Christ's presence in the narrative. The religious leaders question John's authority to baptize if he's neither Messiah nor prophet, yet the true answer stands unrecognized among them. The irony is profound—the one who authorizes all authority stands unnoticed. John's water baptism contrasts with what Christ will bring—Spirit baptism that accomplishes what water only symbolizes.

Historical Context

John's baptism was for repentance, preparing for the Coming One. Proselyte baptism was practiced for Gentile converts; John's innovation was applying it to Jews, implying they too needed cleansing. The leaders' question about authority missed the point—the ultimate authority stood in their midst, unrecognized because of their spiritual blindness.

Study Questions

1. How might Christ be 'standing among us' today in ways we fail to recognize?
2. What blinded the religious leaders from recognizing Christ, and how can we avoid similar blindness?
