

John 1:6

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

There was a man sent from God, whose name was John.

Analysis

John the Baptist is introduced with deliberate contrast to the Logos. The verb 'egeneto' (came into being, was sent) differs from the Logos' 'en' (was)—John came into existence at a point in time; the Logos eternally exists. The phrase 'sent from God' (apostalmenos para theou) establishes John as a commissioned messenger, a prophet with divine authority but subordinate to the one he announces. His name 'Ioannes' (Hebrew Yochanan, meaning 'Yahweh is gracious') prophetically speaks to his role announcing God's grace in Christ.

Historical Context

John the Baptist was a transitional figure, the last Old Testament prophet and forerunner of the New Covenant. His birth was miraculous (Luke 1:5-25), his ministry powerful, attracting crowds from all Judea. Josephus confirms John's historical significance, recording his execution by Herod Antipas. John bridges the Testaments—prophetically announcing what the Logos would accomplish.
