

John 10:15

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

As the Father knoweth me, even so know I the Father: and I lay down my life for the sheep.

Analysis

Jesus declares perfect mutual knowledge between Himself and believers, paralleling His relationship with the Father. This mutual knowledge isn't merely information but intimate relationship - knowing and being known personally. Christ's declaration 'I lay down my life for the sheep' demonstrates the ultimate proof of the Good Shepherd's love - voluntary death for His own.

Historical Context

The sacrifice of Christ stands in stark contrast to hirelings who flee danger. Jesus' voluntary death for His sheep demonstrates love that no false shepherd could match.
