

John 11:47

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Then gathered the chief priests and the Pharisees a council, and said, What do we? for this man doeth many miracles.

Analysis

The chief priests and Pharisees convene the Sanhedrin, acknowledging Jesus performs 'many miracles' (literally 'signs'). Their question 'What do we?' reveals political calculation, not spiritual inquiry. They don't dispute the miracles' reality but debate the response. This demonstrates hardened hearts—even undeniable evidence doesn't penetrate willful unbelief. Their concern is pragmatic (maintaining power) not theological (seeking truth). This validates Jesus' teaching about those who wouldn't believe even if one rose from the dead (Luke 16:31).

Historical Context

The Sanhedrin was Judaism's supreme council of 71 members including chief priests, elders, and scribes. They held religious and limited civil authority under Roman oversight.

Study Questions

1. What does the leaders' undisputed acceptance of miracles yet rejection of Christ teach about unbelief's nature?
2. How does political calculation corrupt spiritual discernment?
3. In what ways do we allow pragmatic concerns to override spiritual truth?
