

John 12:45

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And he that seeth me seeth him that sent me.

Analysis

Jesus states that seeing Him is seeing the Father, advancing His identity claim. This isn't mere representation but substantial unity—to see Jesus' character, works, and words is to see the Father revealed. The Greek verb 'theorei' suggests contemplative seeing, not merely physical sight. Philip later requests, 'show us the Father' (14:8-9), receiving this same answer. This demonstrates the incarnation's purpose: making the invisible God visible (1:18). Jesus fully reveals the Father's nature. Knowing Jesus is knowing God; rejecting Jesus is rejecting God.

Historical Context

The incarnation's central mystery is God becoming visible in human flesh. Jesus' claim to perfectly reveal the Father establishes His divine nature and unique mediatorial role (1 Tim 2:5).
