

John 12:50

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And I know that his commandment is life everlasting:
whatsoever I speak therefore, even as the Father said unto me, so I speak.

Analysis

Jesus concludes by equating the Father's commandment with eternal life. Obedience to God's word produces life, not death. The Father's 'commandment is life everlasting' establishes inseparable connection between divine word and eternal life. Jesus therefore speaks exactly as the Father instructed, guaranteeing His words bring life to believers. This validates sola scriptura—Scripture alone brings salvation because it alone is God's word. The chapter ends affirming that Jesus' teaching, far from being rejected, is the very word of life.

Historical Context

This conclusion reinforces John's Gospel purpose statement (20:31)—that readers might believe and have life through Jesus' name. His words are the Father's words, which are life itself.
