

John 13:27

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And after the sop Satan entered into him. Then said Jesus unto him, That thou doest, do quickly.

Analysis

---

After the sop Satan entered into him (εἰσῆλθεν εἰς ἐκεῖνον ὁ Σατανᾶς, eisēlthen eis ekeinon ho Satanas)—not mere external temptation but demonic possession. John 13:2 says Satan had already "put into" Judas's heart to betray Jesus; now Satan personally indwells him. This progression shows how entertaining sin opens the door to Satan's dominion. The aorist tense marks a definitive moment of satanic control.

That thou doest, do quickly (ὁ ποιεῖς ποίησον τάχιον)—Jesus sovereignly commands the timing of His own betrayal. Not passivity but active submission to the Father's will. He is not victim but victor, orchestrating even evil toward redemptive purposes (Acts 2:23). The imperative mood shows Christ's authority even over His betrayer.

Historical Context

First-century Judaism recognized demonic possession as real spiritual danger. Jesus's command to Judas reflects His sovereign control over the Passion timeline—He would die at Passover, fulfilling typology as the Lamb of God (Exodus 12). Judas's departure initiated the final hours before crucifixion.

Study Questions

1. How does the progression from temptation (v.2) to possession (v.27) warn against 'small' compromises with sin?
2. What does Jesus's sovereign command over His betrayal teach about God's control over evil?
3. Are there areas where you're giving Satan a foothold through unrepented sin?
