

John 13:32

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

If God be glorified in him, God shall also glorify him in himself, and shall straightway glorify him.

Analysis

---

If God be glorified in him, God shall also glorify him in himself (εἰ ὁ θεὸς ἐδοξάσθη ἐν αὐτῷ, καὶ ὁ θεὸς δοξάσει αὐτὸν ἐν ἑαυτῷ)—the conditional 'if' assumes reality ('since God is glorified'). The future tense doxasei (shall glorify) points to the resurrection and ascension. In himself (ἐν ἑαυτῷ, en heautō) means God will glorify Christ not through external circumstances but by elevating Him to God's own glory, sharing the divine throne (Philippians 2:9-11, Hebrews 1:3).

And shall straightway glorify him (εὐθὺς δοξάσει αὐτόν)—euthys (immediately, straightway) again. The cross leads directly to resurrection (three days) and ascension (forty days). No delay between humiliation and exaltation. Jesus's glorification was certain and imminent.

Historical Context

Jewish expectation of Messiah focused on earthly, political triumph. Jesus radically redefines messianic glorification: suffering precedes glory (Luke 24:26), and glory comes through resurrection, not military conquest. Within seven weeks of this statement, Jesus would be seated at the Father's right hand (Acts 2:33), the ultimate vindication and glorification.

Study Questions

1. How does Christ's immediate glorification after suffering encourage believers facing present trials (Romans 8:17-18)?
2. What does it mean that the Father glorifies the Son 'in himself'—sharing divine glory?
3. How should the certainty of future glorification shape your present obedience to Christ?
