

John 16:3

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And these things will they do unto you, because they have not known the Father, nor me.

Analysis

---

They have not known the Father, nor me (οὐκ ἔγνωσαν τὸν πατέρα οὐδὲ ἐμέ, ouk egnōsan ton patera oude eme)—the aorist tense of ginōskō (to know) points to their decisive failure to recognize God. This is relational knowledge, not mere information. Jesus identifies the root cause of religious persecution: ignorance of God's true character as revealed in Christ.

The tragic irony: those most zealous for God prove most ignorant of Him. This echoes John 1:10 ('the world knew him not'), 8:19 ('ye neither know me, nor my Father'), and 15:21 ('they know not him that sent me'). True knowledge of the Father necessarily includes knowing the Son, for Christ perfectly reveals the Father's nature (John 14:9). Religious activity without this knowledge produces persecutors, not worshipers.

Historical Context

First-century Judaism possessed the Scriptures, the temple, and zealous commitment to monotheism—yet missed the Messiah standing before them. This pattern would repeat throughout church history: the medieval Inquisition, Reformation-era martyrdoms, and modern persecution often perpetrated by the 'religious' who claim to defend God's honor while rejecting His Son.

Study Questions

1. How can you distinguish between knowing about God and truly knowing God through Christ?
2. In what ways might religious tradition or zeal obscure rather than reveal the true character of God?
3. How does Jesus's teaching guard you against both persecuting others and being embittered by persecution?
