

John 17:20

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word;

Analysis

Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word—Jesus expands His high priestly prayer beyond the eleven disciples to include all future believers. The Greek pisteuontōn (πιστευόντων, "those who will believe") is a present participle emphasizing continuous, ongoing faith across generations. The phrase through their word (διὰ τοῦ λόγου αὐτῶν) establishes apostolic testimony as the foundation for Christian faith—we believe because of the eyewitness proclamation preserved in Scripture.

This verse demolishes any notion that Jesus prayed only for an elite spiritual class. Every believer from Pentecost to the present age stands included in Christ's intercession. The phrase dia tou logou ("through the word") underscores the instrumental means of saving faith: the proclaimed and written gospel. As Paul later wrote, "faith comes by hearing, and hearing by the word of God" (Romans 10:17).

Historical Context

Jesus spoke this prayer in the upper room on the night of His betrayal (c. AD 30), hours before His crucifixion. The eleven disciples present (Judas had left) would soon become the apostolic witnesses whose testimony—first oral, then written in the New Testament—would be the means by which all subsequent generations come to faith.
