

John 18:1

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

When Jesus had spoken these words, he went forth with his disciples over the brook Cedron, where was a garden, into the which he entered, and his disciples.

Analysis

When Jesus had spoken these words—This marks the transition from the Upper Room Discourse (chapters 13-17) to the Passion narrative. Jesus deliberately went forth (ἐξῆλθεν, exēlthen), the same verb used of His voluntary mission from the Father (8:42, 13:3). He was not arrested; He advanced toward His appointed suffering.

Over the brook Cedron (τοῦ χειμάρρου τῶν Κέδρων, tou cheimarrou tōn Kedrōn) —The Kidron Valley, flowing between Jerusalem and the Mount of Olives, held profound typological significance. David crossed it fleeing from Absalom (2 Sam. 15:23); now the greater Son of David crosses it to face betrayal and enthronement. This was the ravine where animal blood and temple refuse were disposed—Jesus crosses toward His role as sin-bearer. Where was a garden—Gethsemane. Sin began in a garden (Eden); redemption is secured in a garden (Gethsemane) and completed at a garden tomb (19:41).

Historical Context

John wrote 60-90 AD, emphasizing themes his readers would recognize. The Kidron crossing evoked David's humiliation and return to glory. First-century Jews would see Jesus as the true King entering His passion voluntarily, not as victim but victor. Gethsemane ("oil press") was a private olive grove where Jesus frequently met with disciples (18:2), making Judas's betrayal more intimate and treacherous.

Study Questions

1. What does Jesus's deliberate crossing of the Kidron reveal about His willing acceptance of the Father's plan versus being a passive victim?
2. How does the garden motif (Eden, Gethsemane, garden tomb) frame the biblical narrative of fall and redemption?
