

John 2:4

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Jesus saith unto her, Woman, what have I to do with thee?
mine hour is not yet come.

Analysis

Jesus' response—'Woman, what have I to do with thee? mine hour is not yet come'—establishes crucial theological boundaries. 'Woman' (gynai) is respectful but formal, creating appropriate distance. Jesus' earthly family relationships are subordinate to His divine mission. 'My hour' refers to His appointed time for manifesting glory fully—the cross. While He will act, He operates according to divine timing, not human pressure.

Historical Context

The address 'Woman' appears again at the cross (John 19:26), forming an inclusio around John's Gospel. Jesus consistently prioritizes the Father's will above family expectations (Luke 2:49, Mark 3:33-35). His 'hour' is a recurring theme in John, pointing toward the crucifixion as the climax of His mission.

Study Questions

1. How does Jesus' response to Mary model proper subordination of even family relationships to God's will?
2. What does 'My hour' teach about divine timing in our lives?
