

John 6:44

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

No man can come to me, except the Father which hath sent me draw him: and I will raise him up at the last day.

Analysis

'No man can come to me, except the Father which hath sent me draw him: and I will raise him up at the last day.' Human inability meets divine initiative. Coming to Christ requires the Father's drawing. 'Can' (dunatai) indicates ability, not permission—humanity cannot come unless drawn. This isn't mere invitation but effective attraction. Yet drawing doesn't force—those drawn come willingly because God changes their hearts.

Historical Context

This verse expresses the doctrine of effectual calling. God's drawing doesn't merely make salvation possible; it makes it actual. Augustine, Luther, and Calvin emphasized this verse against Pelagian views of human ability. The tension between divine sovereignty and human responsibility remains mystery, but both are affirmed.
