

John 6:47

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me hath everlasting life.

Analysis

---

'Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me hath everlasting life.' Simple, emphatic declaration: belief equals possession of eternal life. Present tense 'hath' (echei) indicates current possession, not merely future hope. Eternal life begins at faith, continues through death, and culminates in resurrection. This is John's repeated theme—faith brings immediate, ongoing, and ultimate life.

Historical Context

This statement summarizes John's Gospel purpose (20:31). Eternal life is not earned by works or awaited in purgatory but possessed now through faith. The double 'verily' emphasizes certainty. This verse has been foundational to evangelical assurance.

Study Questions

1. What does it mean to 'have' eternal life now rather than merely expect it in the future?

2. How does present possession of eternal life affect daily living?
