

John 6:9

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

There is a lad here, which hath five barley loaves, and two small fishes: but what are they among so many?

Analysis

'There is a lad here, which hath five barley loaves, and two small fishes: but what are they among so many?' Andrew identifies a resource—a boy's lunch. Barley bread was poor people's food; the fish were small, probably pickled. The resource is meager, the need massive. Andrew's question expresses doubt yet still reports availability. This meal represents all we can offer Christ—insufficient by human measure, yet He transforms it.

Historical Context

The boy's willingness to offer his lunch is often overlooked. He could have hidden it or eaten it himself. Instead, this unnamed child contributed what became the material for a miracle. Small offerings, willingly given, become vehicles of divine abundance.

Study Questions

1. What does the boy's willingness to give his lunch teach about offering what we have?
2. How does God use insufficient resources to demonstrate His sufficiency?
