

John 7:28

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Then cried Jesus in the temple as he taught, saying, Ye both know me, and ye know whence I am: and I am not come of myself, but he that sent me is true, whom ye know not.

Analysis

Then cried Jesus in the temple as he taught, saying, Ye both know me, and ye know whence I am: and I am not come of myself, but he that sent me is true, whom ye know not. Jesus responds to their objection loudly ('cried'—ekraxen). He acknowledges they know His earthly origin but insists they miss the crucial truth: He doesn't come 'of myself' (ap' emautou) but is sent by the Father who is 'true' (alēthinos). The final phrase 'whom ye know not' (hon humeis ouk oidate) is damning—they claim to know God but don't recognize His sent one.

Historical Context

This continues John's theme that knowing Jesus means knowing the Father (8:19, 14:7-9). The Jews' claim to know God while rejecting Jesus proves they don't truly know God. First-century Judaism emphasized knowing God through Torah and tradition, but Jesus insists He is the ultimate revelation. Not knowing Christ means not knowing God, regardless of religious pedigree.
