

John 7:37

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

In the last day, that great day of the feast, Jesus stood and cried, saying, If any man thirst, let him come unto me, and drink.

Analysis

The 'last day, that great day of the feast' refers to Tabernacles' seventh day when priests poured water from Siloam, symbolizing God's provision in the wilderness. Jesus stood and cried (emphatic proclamation), offering Himself as the fulfillment. 'If any man thirst' is a universal invitation—salvation is for all who recognize their spiritual need. 'Come unto me' emphasizes Christ alone satisfies, and 'drink' indicates appropriation by faith.

Historical Context

The Feast of Tabernacles celebrated wilderness wanderings and harvest. Daily, priests drew water from Siloam, poured it at the altar while singing Isaiah 12:3: 'with joy shall ye draw water from the wells of salvation.' Jesus claimed to be that salvation.
