

Joshua 22:15

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And they came unto the children of Reuben, and to the children of Gad, and to the half tribe of Manasseh, unto the land of Gilead, and they spake with them, saying,

Analysis

They came unto the children of Reuben, and to the children of Gad, and to the half tribe of Manasseh, unto the land of Gilead—The geography is critical: Gilead lies east of the Jordan River, separating these tribes from the tabernacle at Shiloh. The delegation physically crossed the Jordan to address the crisis face-to-face rather than making accusations from a distance.

They spake with them, saying—The verb נִבְאַת (dabar) means to speak formally or declare, suggesting this was an official inquiry rather than casual conversation. The delegation came prepared to hear the defense, modeling biblical conflict resolution that assumes innocent intent until proven otherwise (Proverbs 18:17).

Historical Context

Gilead, the Transjordan territory allocated to Reuben, Gad, and half of Manasseh (Joshua 13), was prime grazing land but geographically isolated from the main worship center. This separation created legitimate concerns about future generations maintaining covenant loyalty.

Study Questions

1. Why is face-to-face confrontation essential in resolving potential church divisions (rather than rumors or third-party reports)?
2. How does their willingness to travel to Gilead demonstrate the principle of pursuing peace and unity?
3. What modern church conflicts might be resolved if we followed this pattern of personal, direct engagement?
