

Judges 20:25

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And Benjamin went forth against them out of Gibeah the second day, and destroyed down to the ground of the children of Israel again eighteen thousand men; all these drew the sword.

Analysis

Benjamin went forth against them out of Gibeah the second day, and destroyed down to the ground of the children of Israel again eighteen thousand men; all these drew the sword (כָּלֵם שְׁלֵפֵי חֶרֶב, kullam sholefei charev, 'all of them drawers of sword')—another devastating defeat! Israel loses 18,000 more warriors, bringing total casualties to 40,000 from their 400,000-man force. Benjamin remains dominant despite 15-to-1 numerical disadvantage.

The second defeat is even more shocking than the first because it follows specific consultation where Israel wept before the LORD and received permission to 'go up.' This demonstrates that God sometimes allows repeated failure to break stubborn self-will and drive us to complete surrender. Israel's two defeats cost 40,000 lives—more casualties than Benjamin's entire army (26,700). This catastrophic loss finally drives them to proper seeking in verses 26-28: fasting, burnt offerings, peace offerings, direct inquiry through the high priest, and explicit question about victory. God's pedagogy uses painful consequences to teach that religious activity without heart humility accomplishes nothing. When shallow seeking persists despite initial failure, God may intensify discipline until we learn to seek Him properly.

Historical Context

The combined loss of 40,000 warriors represented 10% of Israel's force—devastating but not army-destroying. Such casualties would typically cause ancient armies to withdraw and negotiate. That Israel persisted shows extraordinary commitment to covenant justice, yet also reveals dangerous pride that wouldn't accept that their approach needed fundamental revision. Benjamin's continued success emboldened their defiance, making eventual reconciliation harder.

Study Questions

1. When does God intensify discipline through repeated defeats to break your stubborn self-will?
2. How many painful lessons must you endure before you move from shallow seeking to complete surrender?
3. What does it take for you to recognize that your fundamental approach, not just your effort, needs correction?
