

Judges 7:22

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And the three hundred blew the trumpets, and the LORD set every man's sword against his fellow, even throughout all the host: and the host fled to Beth-shittah in Zererath, and to the border of Abel-meholah, unto Tabbath.

Analysis

While the 300 continued blowing trumpets, 'the LORD set every man's sword against his fellow, even throughout all the host.' God induced the Midianites to attack each other in the darkness and confusion—friendly fire on massive scale. The fleeing remnant headed east toward their homelands: 'unto Beth-shittah in Zererath, and to the border of Abel-meholah, unto Tabbath.' These place names trace the retreat route from the Jezreel Valley back across the Jordan. The phrase 'the LORD set' emphasizes divine agency—this wasn't merely natural panic but supernatural confusion.

Historical Context

The flight route moved from the Jezreel Valley (Israel's heartland) eastward toward the Jordan River crossings. Beth-shittah and Zererath were likely in the Jordan Valley, Abel-meholah (Elisha's hometown, 1 Kings 19:16) was east of the Jordan, and Tabbath was in Gilead. The retreating force was heading back to Midianite and Amalekite territories east and south of the Dead Sea. The distance covered (30-40 miles) in panicked flight indicates the rout's thoroughness.

Study Questions

1. How does God causing the enemy to fight each other demonstrate His sovereignty over the spiritual forces arrayed against believers?
2. What does this victory with minimal Israelite casualties teach about God's ability to protect His people while defeating their enemies?
3. How should remembering God's past victories encourage confidence when facing present spiritual battles?
