

Lamentations 3:26

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

It is good that a man should both hope and quietly wait for the salvation of the LORD.

Analysis

It is good that a man should both hope and quietly wait (טוב וְיָחִיל וְדוּמָם לְתִשׁוּעַת) tov veyachil vedunam litshuot YHWH)—Three key terms: 'good' (tov) affirms the value of the posture; 'hope' (yachil, from same root as verse 24) is expectant waiting; 'quietly' (dumam) means silently, without complaining or questioning. For the salvation of the LORD (litshuot YHWH)—'salvation' (yeshuah, from which 'Jesus' derives) is deliverance, victory, rescue. The verse counsels submission to divine timing without either despair or impatient demand. This 'quiet hope' contradicts the cultural narrative that activism and protest are the only acceptable responses to injustice.

Historical Context

Many exiles wanted immediate return, conspiracy against Babylon, or political solutions. Jeremiah had earlier written to exiles commanding them to 'build houses, plant gardens, multiply' in Babylon (Jeremiah 29:4-7)—long-term settling, not escape plotting. Quiet waiting was counter-cultural counsel then as now.

Study Questions

1. Does your 'hope' manifest as quiet trust or anxious agitation? What does your speech under trial reveal about the reality of your faith?
2. How does 'quietly waiting for salvation' differ from passive fatalism or from the constant activity our culture equates with faithfulness?
