

Lamentations 3:43

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Thou hast covered with anger, and persecuted us: thou hast slain, thou hast not pitied.

Analysis

God covered Himself with anger, pursuing and slaying without pity. Divine wrath fully displayed. Yet verses 31-33 promise mercy.

Historical Context

God pursued Israel through multiple judgments before final exile. Warnings ignored led to pitiless execution.

Study Questions

1. How reconcile pursuing without pity with merciful character?
2. How does the imagery of God covering Himself with anger reveal divine wrath as a barrier?
3. What does it mean that God 'pursued' and 'slain' His people, and how does this inform our view of judgment?
