

Luke 1:44

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

For, lo, as soon as the voice of thy salutation sounded in mine ears, the babe leaped in my womb for joy.

Analysis

John's leap in Elisabeth's womb 'for joy' at Mary's salutation demonstrates prenatal life and spiritual sensitivity. The Greek 'eskirtesen en agalliasei' indicates not random movement but joyful exultation—John's first prophetic act was recognizing and rejoicing at his Lord's presence. This affirms both the full humanity of the unborn and the unique role of John as forerunner who would prepare the way. From a Reformed perspective, this shows God's sovereign work in election and sanctification even before birth. The unborn John's response to the unborn Jesus foreshadows his future ministry pointing others to Christ.

Historical Context

At six months gestation, John's movement would be strong and recognizable. Elisabeth interprets this specific movement at Mary's greeting as joyful recognition, not mere physical response. This prenatal encounter prefigures John's later testimony: 'He must increase, but I must decrease' (John 3:30).
