

Luke 1:66

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And all they that heard them laid them up in their hearts, saying, What manner of child shall this be! And the hand of the Lord was with him.

Analysis

The community's laying up these events 'in their hearts' shows thoughtful meditation on God's works, not mere gossip. Their question—'What manner of child shall this be?'—demonstrates expectation that one marked by such supernatural occurrences would have significant destiny. The addition 'And the hand of the Lord was with him' confirms divine favor and purpose on John's life from birth. This phrase echoes Old Testament descriptions of God's presence with those He calls (1 Sam 18:12, 14). The community's recognition and pondering created atmosphere of expectation for John's ministry. Their question would be answered as John grew and began prophetic ministry.

Historical Context

The 'hill country of Judaea' (v39) witnessed these events that marked John as special from birth. The community's expectation would later be fulfilled when John emerged from wilderness to call Israel to repentance. Their pondering kept alive awareness of God's work in their midst.
