

Luke 11:37

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And as he spake, a certain Pharisee besought him to dine with him: and he went in, and sat down to meat.

Analysis

And as he spake, a certain Pharisee besought him to dine with him (ἐρωτᾷ αὐτὸν Φαρισαῖός τις ὅπως ἀριστήσῃ παρ' αὐτῷ)—the verb erōtaō (besought) appears polite, yet context suggests entrapment given growing hostility (v.53-54).

And he went in, and sat down to meat (εἰσελθὼν δὲ ἀνέπεσεν)—Jesus accepts despite knowing their hearts, demonstrating accessibility even to critics. The verb anapiptō (reclined) indicates formal dining posture.

Luke frequently portrays Jesus dining with various groups, using meals as teaching opportunities. This meal becomes the setting for Jesus's most comprehensive denunciation of Pharisaic religion (vv.39-52), the 'six woes' that expose external religion divorced from internal transformation.

Historical Context

Pharisaic meal fellowship involved elaborate ritual purity laws governing food preparation, hand washing, table fellowship, vessel cleanliness. These regulations, developed to extend priestly purity to everyday life, became badges of spiritual superiority and barriers against 'unclean' common people. The Pharisees' invitation tests whether Jesus observes their traditions.

Study Questions

1. How does Jesus's willingness to dine with critics model engagement with those who oppose you?
2. What motivations might drive religious leaders to 'invite' Jesus while planning to critique him?
3. How can you maintain truth-telling while remaining accessible to those who disagree?
