

Luke 14:35

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

It is neither fit for the land, nor yet for the dunghill; but men cast it out. He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.

Analysis

It is neither fit for the land, nor yet for the dunghill; but men cast it out. He that hath ears to hear, let him hear (οὐτε εἰς γῆν οὐτε εἰς κοπρίαν εὔθετόν ἐστιν· ἔξω βάλλουσιν αὐτό. Ὁ ἔχων ὥτα ἀκούειν ἀκούετω)—worthless salt is euthe-ton (fit, suitable) for nothing—not eis gēn (for the land, as fertilizer) nor eis koprian (for the dunghill, as compost). Men exō ballousin (cast it out, throw it away). The repetition of worthlessness emphasizes total uselessness.

Jesus warns that compromised disciples are worthless for kingdom purposes and will be discarded. This echoes Matthew 5:13: salt losing its savor is 'good for nothing, but to be cast out, and to be trodden under foot of men.' The solemn conclusion—He that hath ears to hear, let him hear—signals critical importance. This isn't casual teaching but urgent warning about spiritual fruitlessness leading to divine rejection.

Historical Context

The imagery of being cast out likely connects to Gehenna (hell)—Jerusalem's garbage dump where worthless refuse burned perpetually. Jesus frequently used Gehenna imagery for final judgment (Mark 9:43-48). Worthless salt thrown away prefigures worthless professors cast into eternal fire. The warning targets those who profess discipleship but refuse discipleship's cost (vv.26-27, 33).

Study Questions

1. How does this passage challenge 'easy believism' or cultural Christianity that costs nothing and changes nothing?
2. What does it mean to be 'fit for nothing'—how might religious profession without transformation lead to divine rejection?
3. Do you have 'ears to hear' this warning, or are you dismissing its severity as applying to others but not you?
