

Luke 18:3

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And there was a widow in that city; and she came unto him, saying, Avenge me of mine adversary.

Analysis

The widow's persistence: 'And there was a widow in that city; and she came unto him, saying, Avenge me of mine adversary.' The 'widow' (χήρα, chēra) represents society's most vulnerable—without husband, social status, or legal protection. Yet she persistently 'came unto him' (ῆρχετο πρὸς αὐτόν, ērchetō pros auton, imperfect tense indicating repeated action). Her request: 'Avenge me of mine adversary' ('Εκδίκησόν με ἀπὸ τοῦ ἀντιδίκου μου, Ekdikēson me apo tou antidikou mou)—grant me justice against my opponent. She had no leverage—no money for bribes, no connections for influence, no threats to compel action. All she had was persistence. Despite repeated refusals, she kept coming. This models persistent, faith-filled prayer that refuses to give up despite delayed answers.

Historical Context

Widows in ancient society faced extreme vulnerability. Without husbands or male relatives to advocate for them, they easily became victims of exploitation (Exodus 22:22-24, Deuteronomy 27:19, Isaiah 1:17). Biblical law repeatedly mandates protection for widows, orphans, and foreigners—society's powerless (Deuteronomy 10:18, 24:17, Psalm 68:5, 146:9, James 1:27). This widow had a legal case but no means to secure justice from a corrupt judge. Her only weapon was persistent presence and repeated plea. Jesus holds her up as a model for prayer—come repeatedly, refuse discouragement, persist until God answers.
