

Luke 18:37

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And they told him, that Jesus of Nazareth passeth by.

Analysis

They told him, that Jesus of Nazareth passeth by (ἀπήγγειλαν δὲ αὐτῷ ὅτι Ἰησοῦς ὁ Ναζωραῖος παρέρχεται, apēngelian de autō hoti Iēsous ho Nazōraios parerchetai)—The crowd's answer is factual but minimal. Apangellō (to announce, report) conveys information without interpretation. They identify Jesus geographically—of Nazareth (ὁ Ναζωραῖος)—a designation often used dismissively (John 1:46: 'Can any good thing come out of Nazareth?').

Passeth by (παρέρχεται, parerchetai)—the present tense emphasizes the fleeting moment. Jesus is passing, not stopping. This creates urgency: the beggar must act now or miss his opportunity. The verb parerchomai can mean 'to pass away, disappear'—without intervention, Jesus will be gone, perhaps forever. This spatial passing becomes metaphor for spiritual opportunity: Christ comes near, but doesn't force engagement. The beggar must respond.

Historical Context

Nazareth was an insignificant village of perhaps 400 people, unmentioned in Old Testament, Josephus, or Talmud until the Christian era. Identifying Jesus this way likely conveyed low social status rather than honor. Yet this 'Nazarene' was attracting massive crowds, creating the cognitive dissonance that defined Jesus's ministry—nobody from nowhere doing works of God.
