

Luke 19:35

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And they brought him to Jesus: and they cast their garments upon the colt, and they set Jesus thereon.

Analysis

They cast their garments upon the colt, and they set Jesus thereon (ἐπιρίψαντες αὐτῶν τὰ ἱμάτια ἐπὶ τὸν πῶλον ἐπεβίβασαν τὸν Ἰησοῦν, epiripsantes autōn ta himatia epi ton pōlon epebibasan ton Iēsoun). The disciples' garments (ἱμάτια, himatia) function as an improvised saddle and royal cushion. This action echoes Jehu's coronation, when captains spread their garments under him (2 Kings 9:13). The verb cast upon (ἐπιρίπτω, epiriptō) suggests enthusiastic haste—they honor Jesus as king without hesitation.

By setting Jesus thereon (ἐπεβίβασαν, epebibasan), the disciples physically enthroned Him for His approach to Jerusalem. This is Luke's only description of Jesus riding an animal—He normally walked. The mounting marks a deliberate departure from His usual humble transportation, a visible claim to Davidic kingship precisely at the moment when He approaches David's city to fulfill David's covenant.

Historical Context

Spreading garments for someone to walk or ride upon was an ancient Near Eastern gesture of homage to royalty. Outer garments (himatia) were valuable—often a person owned only one or two. The disciples' willingness to use their clothing as a saddle showed lavish devotion. This occurred on the Sunday before Passover, traditionally called Palm Sunday in Christian tradition.
