

Luke 2:23

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

(As it is written in the law of the Lord, Every male that openeth the womb shall be called holy to the Lord;)

Analysis

The parenthetical 'As it is written in the law of the Lord, Every male that openeth the womb shall be called holy to the Lord' quotes Exodus 13:2 and grounds Jesus's presentation in Scripture. The phrase 'openeth the womb' designates firstborn males belonging to God, remembering His sparing of Israel's firstborn at Passover. Jesus being 'called holy to the Lord' is ironic—He is inherently holy (the Holy One, Acts 3:14) yet designated holy by ceremonial law. This demonstrates that Jesus, though divine, entered fully into human legal and religious obligations. His consecration to God foreshadows His complete dedication to the Father's will (John 4:34; 17:4).

Historical Context

Firstborn consecration remembered the Passover (Ex 13:14-15) and required either service in the sanctuary or redemption through sacrifice (Num 18:15-16). Jesus, as true Passover Lamb (1 Cor 5:7), would ultimately redeem all God's firstborn through His own blood.

Study Questions

1. What is the significance of Jesus being designated 'holy' by law when He is inherently holy?
2. How does firstborn consecration to God foreshadow Jesus's complete dedication to the Father?
3. How does Jesus's presentation as firstborn relate to His role as Passover Lamb?
