

Luke 2:38

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And she coming in that instant gave thanks likewise unto the Lord, and spake of him to all them that looked for redemption in Jerusalem.

Analysis

Anna 'gave thanks likewise unto the Lord, and spake of him to all them that looked for redemption in Jerusalem.' Her response mirrors Simeon's—recognizing Jesus as the promised Redeemer and immediately testifying to others. The phrase 'looked for redemption' identifies the faithful remnant who maintained messianic hope. Anna's speaking 'of him' indicates specific testimony about this child, not generic religious talk. As a prophetess, she interpreted current events in light of prophetic expectation, confirming Jesus's identity. That she spoke to all waiting for redemption shows discernment—she addressed those spiritually prepared to receive the message. Her immediate testimony models that encountering Christ produces witness.

Historical Context

The 'looking for redemption' community in Jerusalem represented faithful Jews who maintained hope during Roman occupation and spiritual deadness. Anna's testimony to this group prepared a receptive audience for Jesus's later ministry. Her recognition and proclamation demonstrate that God ensures witnesses to His truth.
