

Luke 2:43

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And when they had fulfilled the days, as they returned, the child Jesus tarried behind in Jerusalem; and Joseph and his mother knew not of it.

Analysis

The parents' ignorance that Jesus 'tarried behind in Jerusalem' after completing the feast days shows the accidental nature of the separation. The detail that they 'fulfilled the days' emphasizes they completed proper observance before beginning return journey. That 'Joseph and his mother knew not of it' indicates Jesus's action was independent and intentional on His part, not parental negligence. The passive 'tarried behind' suggests deliberate choice to remain. This incident foreshadows Jesus's priority of His Father's business over even legitimate family concerns. His remaining in the temple demonstrates early consciousness of His unique relationship to God and mission.

Historical Context

Large pilgrimage groups traveled together for safety, with women and children often traveling separately from men. It wasn't unusual for parents not to see their twelve-year-old during the day's journey, expecting him with relatives. Jesus's deliberate remaining behind demonstrated remarkable independence and purpose for His age.
