

Luke 20:43

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Till I make thine enemies thy footstool.

Analysis

Till I make thine enemies thy footstool (ἕως ἂν θῶ τοὺς ἐχθρούς σου ὑποπόδιον τῶν ποδῶν σου, heōs an thō tous echthrous sou hypopodion tōn podōn sou)—This continues quoting Psalm 110:1. Heōs an (until) introduces temporal clause: Christ sits enthroned while enemies remain unconquered, but their subjugation is certain. Hypopodion (footstool) references ancient victory customs where conquering kings placed feet on defeated enemies' necks (Joshua 10:24), symbolizing total domination.

The Father (kyrios, LORD) will make (thō, aorist subjunctive of tithēmi) Christ's enemies His footstool—not Christ earning victory through struggle, but the Father granting it as coronation gift. Paul applies this to Christ's ultimate triumph: 'For he must reign, till he hath put all enemies under his feet. The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death' (1 Corinthians 15:25-26). Currently, Christ reigns; ultimately, all opposition will be publicly, permanently crushed.

Historical Context

In Jesus's day, Rome seemed invincible—yet within decades, the gospel spread throughout the empire. Historical empires that opposed Christ (Rome, Nazi Germany, Soviet Communism) have all fallen, while His kingdom endures. The final fulfillment awaits Revelation 19-20's description of Christ's return and millennial reign.
