

Luke 22:14

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And when the hour was come, he sat down, and the twelve apostles with him.

Analysis

And when the hour was come, he sat down, and the twelve apostles with him. The solemn phrase when the hour was come (ὅτε ἐγένετο ἡ ὥρα, hote egeneto hē hōra) marks the pivotal moment—not merely Passover's appointed time, but the hour Jesus repeatedly referenced (John 2:4, 7:30, 12:23, 13:1, 17:1). This is God's ordained kairos, the 'hour' of Christ's glorification through suffering.

He sat down (ἀνέπεσεν, anepesen, 'reclined') indicates the formal Passover posture; Jews reclined on their left side, symbolizing freedom (slaves stood to eat). The twelve apostles with him (οἱ ἀπόστολοι σὺν αὐτῷ, hoi apostoloi syn autō) emphasizes unity and intimacy, though one betrayer sat among them. Luke uses 'apostles' (ἀπόστολοι, 'sent ones') rather than 'disciples,' highlighting their commission as authorized representatives who would proclaim this night's events. This meal embodies substitution's paradox: the Passover Lamb reclines to eat the passover lamb.

Historical Context

By Jesus' era, Passover celebrants reclined on couches arranged in a U-shape (triclinium) around a low table, leaning on their left elbow. The host occupied the central position. The meal followed a prescribed liturgy (haggadah) involving four cups of wine, unleavened bread, bitter herbs, and the lamb, with traditional blessings and recitations of Exodus 12-15.
