

Luke 24:30

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And it came to pass, as he sat at meat with them, he took bread, and blessed it, and brake, and gave to them.

Analysis

Jesus revealed in breaking bread: 'And it came to pass, as he sat at meat with them, he took bread, and blessed it, and brake, and gave to them.' At dinner, Jesus 'took bread' (λαβὼν τὸν ἄρτον, labōn ton arton), 'blessed it' (εὐλόγησεν, eulogēsen), 'brake' (κλάσας, klasas), and 'gave to them' (ἐπεδίδου αὐτοῖς, epedidou autois). This sequence echoes the Last Supper (22:19) and the feeding miracles (9:16). The familiar actions triggered recognition—these were distinctively Jesus' gestures. This teaches that Christ reveals Himself through Word (Scripture exposition, vv. 25-27) and sacrament (breaking bread). The pattern establishes Christian worship's structure: Word proclaimed and table shared. Christ meets His people in both.

Historical Context

The breaking of bread has profound significance. First, it connects to the Last Supper, where Jesus instituted Communion. Second, it demonstrates that the risen Christ has physical body capable of eating—He's not mere spirit but resurrected flesh. Third, it reveals Christ's presence in ordinary meals—He transforms common food into sacred encounter. Fourth, it establishes liturgical pattern: Word and sacrament together communicate Christ. The disciples' eyes opened during bread-breaking (v. 31) suggests Christ is both revealed and hidden in Eucharist—physically present yet requiring faith to recognize. This scene influenced Christian practice: from earliest times, believers gathered for Scripture reading and Communion (Acts 2:42, 20:7, 1 Corinthians 11:23-26).

Study Questions

1. How does Jesus' breaking bread connect to the Last Supper and establish Communion's significance?
2. What does this teach about Christ revealing Himself through both Word and sacrament?
3. How should this narrative shape Christian worship's structure and content?
