

Luke 4:18

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor; he hath sent me to heal the brokenhearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised,

Analysis

Jesus quotes Isaiah 61:1-2, applying this messianic prophecy to Himself and defining His mission in terms of liberation for the oppressed. The Greek word 'euangelizō' (preach the gospel) encompasses both proclamation and the good news itself, demonstrating that the gospel brings concrete deliverance. Luke emphasizes Jesus' ministry to the marginalized—the poor, brokenhearted, captives, blind, and bruised—reflecting themes that permeate his entire Gospel. Notably, Jesus stops mid-sentence from Isaiah, omitting 'the day of vengeance,' reserving that aspect for His second coming.

Historical Context

Delivered in the Nazareth synagogue at the beginning of Jesus' Galilean ministry (around 27-28 AD), this programmatic statement announced His messianic mission to His hometown. Isaiah 61 was recognized as a messianic prophecy, and Jesus' claim to fulfill it would have been understood as a direct claim to messiahship, provoking both wonder and hostility.
