

Luke 5:31

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And Jesus answering said unto them, They that are whole need not a physician; but they that are sick.

Analysis

Jesus responds to Pharisees' criticism: 'They that are whole need not a physician; but they that are sick.' This proverb illustrates spiritual reality—those who recognize their spiritual sickness seek the Physician (Jesus), while those who consider themselves spiritually healthy see no need for Him. The Pharisees' self-righteousness blinded them to their desperate need. Jesus doesn't claim some people are actually spiritually healthy but that those who think they are won't seek healing. Recognizing our sickness is the first step toward receiving the cure.

Historical Context

Physicians in the ancient world treated those acknowledging illness, not those claiming health. Jesus applies this obvious truth spiritually—He came for sinners who recognize their condition, not for self-righteous people who deny their need. The Pharisees' objection to Jesus eating with tax collectors and sinners (v. 30) revealed their assumption of moral superiority. Jesus exposes their spiritual blindness—they need the Physician as much as obvious sinners but refuse to acknowledge it. This principle explains why Jesus received prostitutes and tax collectors but opposed Pharisees—not because the former were better but because they admitted their need.
