

Luke 5:8

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

When Simon Peter saw it, he fell down at Jesus' knees, saying, Depart from me; for I am a sinful man, O Lord.

Analysis

When Peter sees the miraculous catch, he 'fell down at Jesus' knees, saying, Depart from me; for I am a sinful man, O Lord.' The Greek 'kyrie' (κύριε, Lord) acknowledges Jesus' divine authority. Peter's response—falling down, confessing sinfulness, asking Jesus to depart—shows proper reaction to encountering holiness. Awareness of Jesus' power triggers awareness of personal sinfulness. Like Isaiah (Isaiah 6:5), Peter recognizes that sinful humans cannot stand in holy God's presence. Yet Jesus doesn't depart but calls Peter to follow—grace meets confession, and divine calling overcomes human unworthiness.

Historical Context

Peter's response echoes Old Testament theophanies where humans encountering God's holiness expressed terror and unworthiness (Isaiah 6:5, Ezekiel 1:28, Daniel 10:8). The miraculous catch revealed Jesus' supernatural knowledge and power over nature—attributes of deity. Peter's recognition of Jesus as 'Lord' (kyrios, often used for God in the Septuagint) suggests dawning awareness of Jesus' divine identity. His plea for Jesus to depart reversed his earlier request to use his boat (v. 3), showing how divine encounter shatters human self-confidence and reveals our true condition before holy God.

Study Questions

1. What does Peter's response of confessing sinfulness upon seeing Jesus' power teach about the relationship between divine holiness and human sin-awareness?
2. How does Jesus' call to follow despite Peter's unworthiness demonstrate grace's triumph over deserved judgment?
