

Luke 7:25

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

But what went ye out for to see? A man clothed in soft raiment? Behold, they which are gorgeously apparelled, and live delicately, are in kings' courts.

Analysis

Jesus continues: 'But what went ye out for to see? A prophet? Yea, I say unto you, and much more than a prophet.' John was indeed prophet but exceeded typical prophets. Prophets announced the Messiah; John introduced Him. The Greek 'perissoteron prophetou' (more than a prophet) elevates John's unique role. He bridges Old and New Covenants—last Old Testament prophet and first New Testament witness. Jesus later declares 'Among those that are born of women there is not a greater prophet than John the Baptist' (Luke 7:28). Yet John's greatness lay not in personal virtue but in unique assignment. Reformed theology recognizes that God assigns roles sovereignly; faithfulness in assigned role brings commendation, not envy of others' assignments.

Historical Context

Prophets in Israel announced God's word, often confronting kings and calling for covenant renewal. Prophetic ministry was dangerous—Jeremiah imprisoned, Isaiah traditionally martyred, prophets killed by Jezebel (1 Kings 18:4). John stood in this tradition but with unprecedented privilege—preparing Messiah's immediate way. His baptism of Jesus (Luke 3:21-22) and testimony 'Behold the Lamb of God' (John 1:29) directly identified the Christ. For Luke's readers, Jesus's commendation of John validated Christian claims about Jesus—if John was genuine prophet (which even skeptics acknowledged), his testimony about Jesus carried weight. Modern application includes honoring those who faithfully fulfill assigned roles without comparing or competing.
