

Mark 1:40

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And there came a leper to him, beseeching him, and kneeling down to him, and saying unto him, If thou wilt, thou canst make me clean.

Analysis

The leper's approach violates Levitical law (Lev. 13:45-46) requiring isolation, yet his faith overrides legal caution. His posture—'kneeling down'—demonstrates worship and recognition of Christ's authority. The conditional 'if thou wilt' acknowledges God's sovereignty in healing while expressing confidence in His power. This models proper prayer: humble, submissive to divine will, yet bold in approaching Christ.

Historical Context

Leprosy (Hebrew: tsara'at) encompassed various skin diseases rendering one ceremonially unclean and socially isolated. Lepers were required to cry 'Unclean!' when approaching others and live outside settlements. The leper's desperate approach to Jesus risked stoning for breaking quarantine.

Study Questions

1. How does the leper's willingness to break social norms demonstrate the priority of seeking Christ above all else?
2. What does 'if thou wilt' teach us about balancing confidence in God's power with submission to His sovereign will?
