

Mark 16:11

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And they, when they had heard that he was alive, and had been seen of her, believed not.

Analysis

---

They, when they had heard that he was alive, and had been seen of her, believed not (ἤκουσαν ὅτι ζῆ καὶ ἐθεάθη ὑπ' αὐτῆς ἠπίστησαν, ēkousan hoti zē kai etheathe hyp' autēs ēpistēsan)—believed not (ἠπίστησαν, apisteo) means active disbelief or refusal to believe. Despite Jesus' repeated predictions (8:31, 9:31, 10:34), resurrection seemed impossible. Their skepticism actually strengthens the historical case: disciples weren't credulous fools ready to believe anything.

The phrase he was alive (ζῆ, zē—present tense, "He is living") emphasizes ongoing life, not mere resuscitation. The disciples' unbelief mirrors our own resistance to truths that overturn our assumptions. Faith doesn't come from human testimony alone but requires the Holy Spirit's conviction (John 16:8) and personal encounter (v.14).

Historical Context

First-century Jews had diverse resurrection beliefs: Pharisees expected general resurrection at the end of the age; Sadducees rejected it entirely (12:18). No one expected an individual to rise bodily in the middle of history. This conceptual impossibility, not mere skepticism, explains the disciples' disbelief. Pagan culture mocked bodily resurrection as absurd (Acts 17:32).

Study Questions

1. What truths about Christ do you intellectually affirm but functionally disbelieve through your actions?
2. How does the disciples' skepticism challenge modern claims that resurrection faith was naive credulity?
3. Why is personal encounter with the risen Christ necessary beyond merely hearing testimony?
