

Mark 2:21

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

No man also seweth a piece of new cloth on an old garment: else the new piece that filled it up taketh away from the old, and the rent is made worse.

Analysis

Jesus uses a parable contrasting old and new: 'No man seweth a piece of new cloth on an old garment.' The 'new cloth' is unshrunk fabric that will contract when washed. Sewing it onto old, already-shrunk garment creates worse tear when the new cloth shrinks. This illustrates the incompatibility of Jesus' new covenant with old covenant forms. The new cloth represents the gospel kingdom Jesus inaugurates; the old garment represents Pharisaic Judaism. Jesus' message can't be patched onto the old system—it requires completely new wineskins. Reformed theology emphasizes the radical newness of new covenant—not mere reform but fulfillment and transformation.

Historical Context

This parable addressed tension between Jesus' ministry and traditional Judaism. Pharisaic leaders expected Messiah to enforce stricter Torah observance, but Jesus proclaimed radical grace. Later, the early church struggled with this—Judaizers insisted Gentile converts must observe Mosaic law. The Jerusalem Council (Acts 15) clarified that faith in Christ, not law-keeping, justifies. The temple's destruction (AD 70) physically demonstrated the old covenant's obsolescence (Hebrews 8:13).
