

Mark 4:24

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And he said unto them, Take heed what ye hear: with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you: and unto you that hear shall more be given.

Analysis

Jesus warns: 'Take heed what ye hear: with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you: and unto you that hear shall more be given.' The command 'take heed' (βλέπετε) means careful attention to quality and content of teaching received. The principle 'with what measure ye mete' teaches that receptivity determines reward—those who eagerly receive truth gain more understanding; those who neglect it lose even what they have. The phrase 'unto you that hear' (ὕμῖν τοῖς ἀκούουσιν) distinguishes genuine hearers (who receive and obey) from mere auditors. Responsive hearing produces increasing understanding; dull hearing produces increasing darkness. This is both promise and warning.

Historical Context

The 'measure' principle appears throughout Scripture: seed sown abundantly reaps abundantly (2 Corinthians 9:6); those faithful with little receive more (Matthew 25:21); judgment corresponds to light received (Luke 12:48). Ancient commerce used various measures—honest merchants used accurate measures, dishonest used false ones (Leviticus 19:35-36; Deuteronomy 25:13-15). Jesus applies this to spiritual realm: generous reception of truth produces abundant growth. Early church emphasized diligent Scripture study and application. Church history records that those who treasure God's word grow in grace; those who neglect it drift into error.
